DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-22, drawn to a method for reserving advertisement space, classified in class 705, subclass 6.
- II. Claims 24-41, drawn to a distributed programming method and system for placing advertisements in a network billboard system, classified in class 705, subclass 14.
- III. Claims 42-44, drawn to a programming method for dynamic schedule application, classified in class 705, subclass 1.
- IV. Claims 45-53, drawn to a network billboard system, classified in class 709

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because a network billboard system can operate without a system and method for reserving advertisement space. The subcombination has separate utility such as a reserving space and placing advertisements in a network system.

Inventions II and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the network billboard system does not require a method and system for placing advertisements into the billboard system. The subcombination has separate utility such as placing advertisements into a billboard system.

Inventions III and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the billboard network system does not require the dynamic schedule application of Group III. . The subcombination has separate utility such scheduling information.

Inventions I, II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, inventions I, II and III have separate utility such as each one of the subcombinations can be used alone or in combination with other systems and methods

See MPEP § 806.05(d). For example,

a) the system and method in Group I has separate utility such as reserving advertising space and can be used without Group II or III.

b) the system and method of Group II has a separate utility such as placing advertisement in a network billboard system and can be used without Group I and III

Art Unit: 3629

c) the method of Group III has a separate utility such as providing a dynamic schedule application and can be used without Group I or II.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Groups II, III, or IV, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group II is not required for Groups I, III, or IV, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group III is not required for Groups I, II, or IV, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group IV is not required for Group I, II, or III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

A telephone call was made to Michael Cornelison on March 22, 2004 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
